

Top Security Award goes to UniTrust

UniTrust Protection Services (UK) Ltd, received a Special Commendation Award at the prestigious Security Watchdog Silver Fox Award Luncheon held at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Marlow.

Ian Yexley, Director of Operations, who received the award from Baroness Ruth Henig CBE, the Chairman of the Security Industry Authority said, "Ironically, on my way home from the ceremony, I received a call from one of the sites we protect to say they had prevented an intruder with a false ID card gaining access to their site. So, even on the day of receiving this major award, we were being tested."

UniTrust is a privately owned security company with head offices in Park Royal serving major blue chip companies and smaller businesses with guards, receptionists, mobile patrols, key holding and response. It is an Approved Contractor (ACS) with the Security Industry Authority (SIA) and a member of the British Security Industry Association (BSIA), British Safety Council (BSC), and Security Watchdog. UniTrust is inspected by the National Security Inspectorate (NSI) on a twice yearly basis, achieving Gold status.

The Security Watchdog - History of the Silver Fox Audit Scheme

The Security Watchdog was established in 1998 by Terry O'Neil, Former Managing Director of Argus Shield Ltd and European CEO of Pinkerton Security, to improve the level of on-site performance of security teams across the UK through independent audit.

Over the years the Silver Fox Audit programme has been widely identified by security companies, their clients and in-house establishments alike as the most desirable and cost effective on-site audit offering in the industry – at a time where regulators mandate ever higher standards and complacency has ever greater consequences.
